FENG SHUI THAT WORKS

The 5 Steps in Applying Feng Shui to Increase Work Opportunities, Become More Likeable and to Fix Health Issues

Joey Yap
HEY!

Thank you for downloading my guide. If you’re here, chances are you want to see some improvements in your career, relationships or health. You’ve probably even tried all conventional methods but the results were mediocre or worse, deteriorated from where it once was.

In my field of expertise, to achieve a change in one’s life, there are 3 factors that come into play. We call this Heaven, Man and Earth or the Cosmic Trinity. Heaven is what is given to us, things that we don’t control and cannot change such as who our parents or siblings are. Man is us and our freewill. Our conscious decisions and experiences determine what goes on in our lives. Lastly, Earth is for the environment that shapes us.

Needless to say, we can’t change Heaven. And for the majority of us, changing someone else is near impossible and we’re naturally resistant to change ourselves. That leaves us with Earth, our environment. It is perhaps the easiest to change, control and influence amongst the Cosmic Trinity. That’s what this guide is about. It’s about using the environment to help us in pursuing our goals, to support us in getting what we want or at the very least, to get unstuck from where we are.

The tool that we use is called Feng Shui. Perhaps you’ve heard of it. 😊
I got an urgent call from a client who was literally screaming for help. It was from a very agitated Mrs. Chan, who had a fish go belly up on her. The belief that fishes die to absorb the owner’s bad luck is very prevalent in Feng Shui.

This belief is so prevalent that when I tried to assure her that her poor goldfish did not commit a sacrificial act to save her life, Mrs. Chan was very disappointed. “I thought you were a Feng Shui expert? How can you not know this?”, she said skeptically. I decided to rise to the challenge and tackle Mrs. Chan’s little experience.

Classical Feng Shui in no way demands living beings to sacrifice themselves for the greater good. If a fish dies, it died of natural causes, and the owner should be checking the aquarium for any cause of death, such as parasites or dirty water.

The reason why Feng Shui practitioners recommend aquariums is to implement the water element in a sector. Water is Yang and active energy, and it helps to harness the Qi in the environment or home. The fishes are there to turn the Water Element feature into an eye-pleaser, nothing more, nothing less.

According to Kuo Po (believed to be the ancient founding father of Feng Shui), “Qi dispersed by the wind and gathers by the boundaries of water.” Water has the ability to allow Qi to collect and settle. Thus, a good practitioner will recommend the client to position an aquarium or pond in the section of the house where good Qi resides not for the fishes, but for the water itself.

My Feng Shui lesson over the phone managed to calm Mrs. Chan down, who understood the superstition behind the dead fish and felt better by the end of our conversation. So, the next time you hear your friends declare how noble their fish was in sacrificing itself for them, tell them this story and remind them that there’s a difference between classical Feng Shui and popular Chinese superstition.
LET’S GET STARTED

There’s a lot to Feng Shui but the four main factors are people, environment, time and building. We’re not going to attempt to make you an expert nor promise you that this is going to ‘get you rich real quick’.

For the purpose of this guide, we’re only going to narrow this down to the Building itself. That means, the place where you spend most of your time. This could be your home or office. We’re going to make this really simple to apply and focus on the results rather than the academia of Feng Shui.
STEP 1
IDENTIFY YOUR OBJECTIVES AND GOALS

Ask yourself, where are the gaps in your life right now? Feng Shui is a holistic tool which can target improvements in specific areas in your life.

Are any of these thoughts in your mind right now?

- Why do I keep meeting the wrong people?
- I'm stuck in a relationship that I can't get out of
- I'm doing my best at my job but I can't seem to get a break
- I have colleagues that seem to dislike me and constantly backstab me
- I'm always ill but the doctors can't seem to find out what's wrong with me
- I have a great career but my family is falling apart
- My business is stuck and things don't look bright
- I'm not a big spender but I just can't seem to make ends meet because of unexpected expenses that pop up all the time
- My children don't listen to me
STEP 2
YOUR HOME

Feng Shui is a century old study and practice. In fact, it’s one of the oldest professions in the world. In the simplest way I can tell you, we primarily look at directions, locations and sectors of your home and how the people can benefit from receiving the Positive Qi (energy).

Once you have identified your objectives and goals, then you look for the sector or location of the home and activate the Qi in that area. The activation itself helps you stimulate Qi and as a result, will bring about positive outcomes to that specific area in life such as career, academic pursuits or even The Peach Blossom (that loosely translates to Romance or your likeability factor).

Think of Qi itself as WiFi. It’s already there. All you need to do is to tap into it.

There are TWO things you need to do here (Yep, you’d have to put this book down for a while to get it done).
1. Measure the Direction of your Main Door
2. Get your house floor plan and segment it into 8 quadrants

Follow the illustrations in the next pages.
1. Whip out your floor plan and box it off to get a perfect rectangle (Refer to the red line). Then, get the center point of your property (Refer to the red dotted line).

2. Stand at the center point (marked x) and use a compass (an app from your phone is also acceptable) to get the direction.
Segment your floor plan into 8 quadrants as shown below. Mark the respective directions of the house (North, NorthEast, East, and so on).

Tips:

Don’t have house floor plan? Don’t worry, you can DIY it! You just got to make sure that the floor plan is proportional to the actual property.

Don’t bother adding the balcony or external lifts into the floor plan. Flying Stars chart will only be applicable to the interior of your home.
STEP 3

MATCH THE FLYING STARS

There are many formulas and schools in the world of Chinese Metaphysics and Feng Shui. Think of martial arts; there’s Shaolin, Wu-Dang and Jeet-Keen Do. So many ways to throw a punch but the punch itself has the same purpose.

Again, we’re focusing on the results so what I’m going to use for this ebook is a method called the Flying Stars Feng Shui (玄空飛星風水). It’s basically a method that maps out the prevailing Qi based on the current astrological movements of stars. These stars change cyclically.

Here’s what the Flying Stars look like for 2018.
Focus on the 4 sectors that have the good stars. I’ve even colored them in red for you.

SouthEast  Seek to maximize this sector to increase wealth accumulation. It would be fruitful if activated as the main Wealth sector of the year.

South  This sector boosts endeavours in humanities, literary and artistic fields. If you are seeking to improve your knowledge and skills this year, this is the sector for you to be in!

SouthWest  If you are seeking for profitable career prospects throughout the year, use more of this sector as the place for you to generate ideas.

NorthWest  This sector promotes relationships and social skills. It brings positive outcomes for career advancements when activated.

1. Map these stars into your house based on the direction taken earlier.
Referring to these marked directions, you can figure out which sector contains the stars that is beneficial to you.
STEP 4

OBSERVE AND ACTIVATE

Now that you know which sectors govern or represent what in your life, look back again at your goals. Make an observation of the area that influences your goals.

You’d want to ensure:

- It’s not cluttered
- There’s circulation of air
- It’s not void or stuffed like a store room and is roomy
- Space is clear, clean and vibrant

If you want to benefit from the energies of this space, all you need to do is to be in there. Spend time in there, use it, have activities in there. If these are not possible, that’s when we utilize aquariums or water features.

That’s it. It’s that simple!
TRY IT, IT COSTS YOU NOTHING

It sounds like magic but it’s really not that mystical. The study of Chinese Metaphysics and the art of applying dates back to Imperial China more than a thousand years ago. When you start to see subtle improvements especially in the goals you’ve identified, you’ll begin to understand that we are all beings of energy. Like it or not, being on this planet means that we are bound by a universal force that’s greater than us.

Feng Shui is an art that can create results that is beyond imagination. The world’s iconic business leaders, corporations and tycoons use it. Why shouldn’t you and I?
I know many would have an inquisitive mind after reading this. Some of you would have more questions about its application. And then there are some who want to know more about this ancient knowledge.

Join this Facebook Group I’ve created. It’s a community of learners and like-minded folks who want to learn more about this wonderful tool.

We’re running tutorials, exclusive videos, quizzes and most important of all – giving support to one another. The only catch here is, you have to participate and contribute as a member of the group.

I’d love to see you there.

Till then, may you find abundance and happiness.
