History of Xuan Kong

Given China's millennia-old history, you might be surprised to know that detailed research and documentation on Xuan Kong could only be traced to the mid-17th century. Prior to the 1640s, the history of Xuan Kong's lineage could be best described as obscure.

But there were records traced to the time of the Jin Dynasty 晉朝 (265 - 420 AD) that mentioned that a disciple by the name of Guo Pu (276-324 AD) had begun passing down a form of knowledge that bore a certain resemblance to Xuan Kong. During the era of the Tang Dynasty, Yang Jun Song authored the Qing Nang Ao Yu (The Profound Sayings of the Azure Bag), which stipulated – amongst other things – that “...the intercourse of...male (Yang) and female (Yin) come together in Xuan Kong” and one should also “...look to Wu Xing 五行 (the Five Elements) to understand Xuan Kong.” This perhaps, established one of the earliest principles of Xuan Kong, where the outcome of things are determined by the interaction between Yin and Yang and the Five Elements of Wood, Earth, Fire, Water and Metal.

As time went by, these cumulated tenets and precepts came into the possession of Jiang Da Hong 蔣大鴻, who lived towards the final days of the Ming Dynasty 明朝 (1368-1644). Giving credit where it's due, it was Grandmaster Jiang who immersed himself thoroughly into studying and deciphering the many complexities surrounding Xuan Kong – and revolutionizing it to serve the needs of mankind. It's therefore unsurprising that Grandmaster Jiang is widely regarded as the forefather of Xuan Kong knowledge!

The 6 Major Schools of Xuan Kong

Towards the early days of the Qing Dynasty, 6 major Xuan Kong schools emerged. They were:

1. Wu Chang Pai 無常派 (founded by Zhang Zhong Shan)
2. Dian Nan Pai 滇南派
3. Su Zhou Pai 蘇州派 (founded by Xu Di Hui)
4. Shang Yu Pai 上虞派
5. Xiang Chu Pai 湘楚派 (founded by Yin You Ben)
6. Guang Dong Pai 廣東派 (founded by Cai Min Shan)

Beyond Flying Stars, there are other sub-systems like:

1. Xuan Kong 64 Hexagram 玄空大卦 (Xuan Kong Da Gua)
2. Xuan Kong Six Methods 玄空六法 (Xuan Kong Liu Fa)
3. Xuan Kong Purple White Divination 玄空紫白訣 (Xuan Kong Zi Bai Jue)
4. Xuan Kong Date Selection 玄空擇日 (Xuan Kong Ze Ri)

Feng Shui Basics

The He Tu 河圖

All Feng Shui formulas are said to derive from the numerology of the He Tu and Luo Shu. The He Tu Numbers and Elements are known as Sheng Cheng Zhi Shu (生成之數).

The Five Elements (Wu Xing 五行)

The Five Elements in the study of Feng Shui, BaZi and classical Chinese Metaphysics are:

The Five Elements are used to symbolically represent Qi and should not be taken in a literal sense. In BaZi, they are used to represent certain key attributes in a person's BaZi chart.

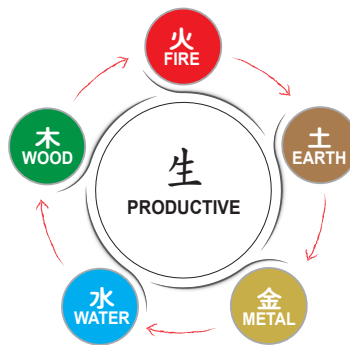

Five Types of Qi

Element	Representation	Properties	Shapes	Colors
Earth	Trustworthiness, stability, wealth	Attractive, dense, stable	Square	Yellow
Metal	Justice, authority, altruism	Sharp, pointing, piercing	Round	White, gold, silver
Water	Wisdom, thoughts, intelligence	Runs downhill, free/unbound	Wavy	Blue, black
Wood	Life, growth, benevolence, education	Grows outwards, enduring	Oblong	Green
Fire	Beauty, elegance, passion	Spreads in every direction, radiates heat	Sharp	Red

The Three (3) Cycles

These Elements share three types of relationships known as Cycles, through which an element can affect another element. Depending on the cycle, these elements Produce (grow), Control (counter) or Weaken one another.

Taking Measurements

In the practice of Classical Feng Shui, Direction and Location are the two of the most important factors to consider.

Before you apply any Feng Shui system, you must first start by taking the correct direction.

What To Do:

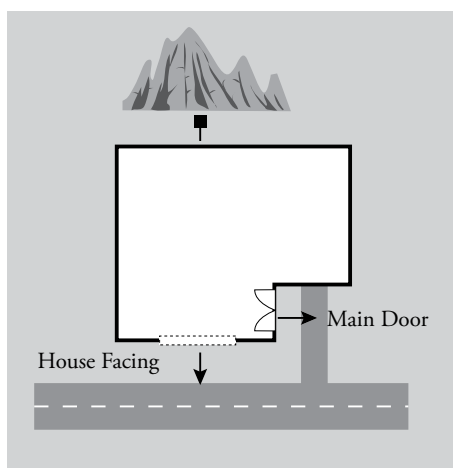

1. Stand about one or two feet outside the door.

Door Facing vs Building Facing

Door Facing is used to determine what direction a door or main door is facing. The facing direction of the Door or Main Door does not necessarily be the same as the facing direction of the Building.

Building Facing is used to establish the North-South axis of a building or property. The facing direction of the Building refers to the façade of the property that is defined as the part or side where the property was built to face - its obvious architectural frontage.

Some examples :

a) The door facing and the house facing directions in this example are not the same. In such cases, you would base your Feng Shui applications on the facing direction of the house, and not the door.

b) The door facing and the house facing directions are the same.

Taking Measurements

2. Determine the Façade (Building Direction) of a Property

1. Determine the property's façade, which is the orientation of the whole property – which side the property was built intentionally to face.
2. Stand at the middle of the façade looking outwards.
3. Use your compass or Luo Pan, with the needle always pointing North, and ascertain the direction you, and the house, are facing.

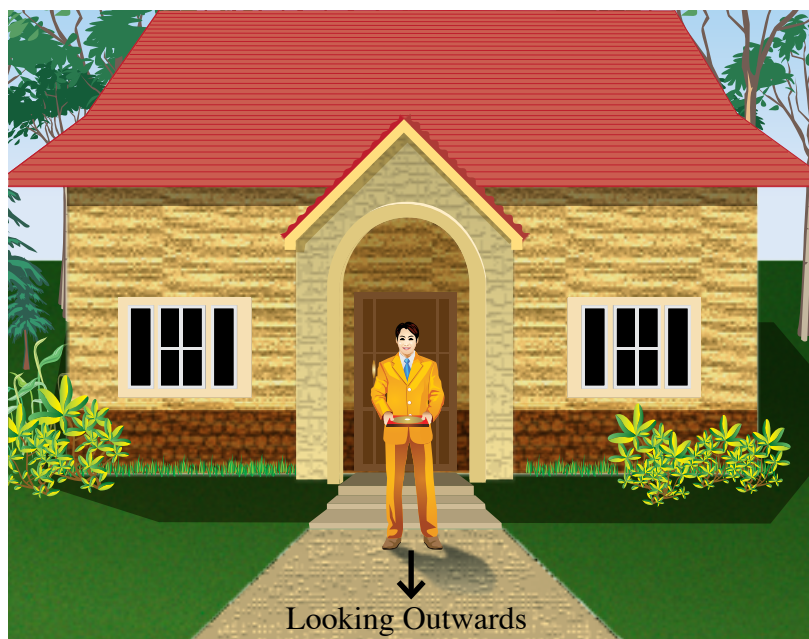

Good to Know:

Feng Shui systems like Flying Stars and Eight Mansions often require the facing direction of the property, not the door, to establish the internal Qi maps or charts.

3. Determining the Facing Direction of a Door

1. Stand about one foot outside the door looking outwards.
2. Use the square base of your Luo Pan to help you align yourself parallel to the door.
3. Align the Luo Pan's needle face-to-face with the North-South axis to determine the door's facing direction.

Super-imposing the Flying Stars onto a Property

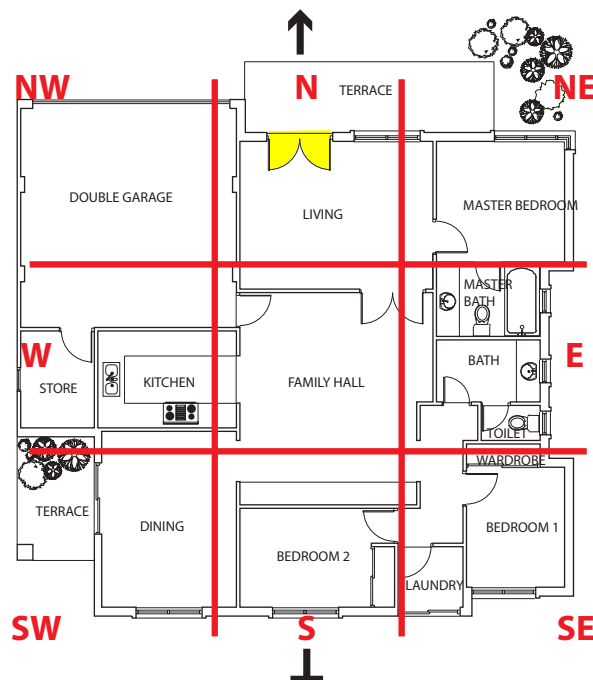

Example:

Let's say the property is a North 2, Period 8 Facing property. So, the Flying Stars chart for the property is as below:

NW	N		NE
2 5 9	7 9 4	9 7 2
1 6 1	3 4 8	5 2 6
6 1 5	8 8 3	4 3 7
SW	S		SE

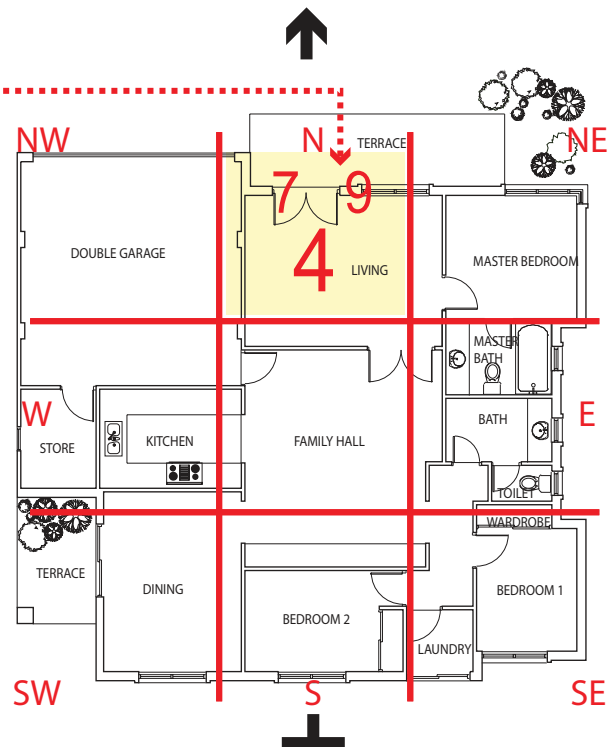

14

Draw a 9 box Grid over the floor plan of the property. Mark out the 9 Palaces, using the Facing Palace as a reference. We know this property faces North. So mark North in the Facing Palace, and mark the other directional palaces out accordingly.

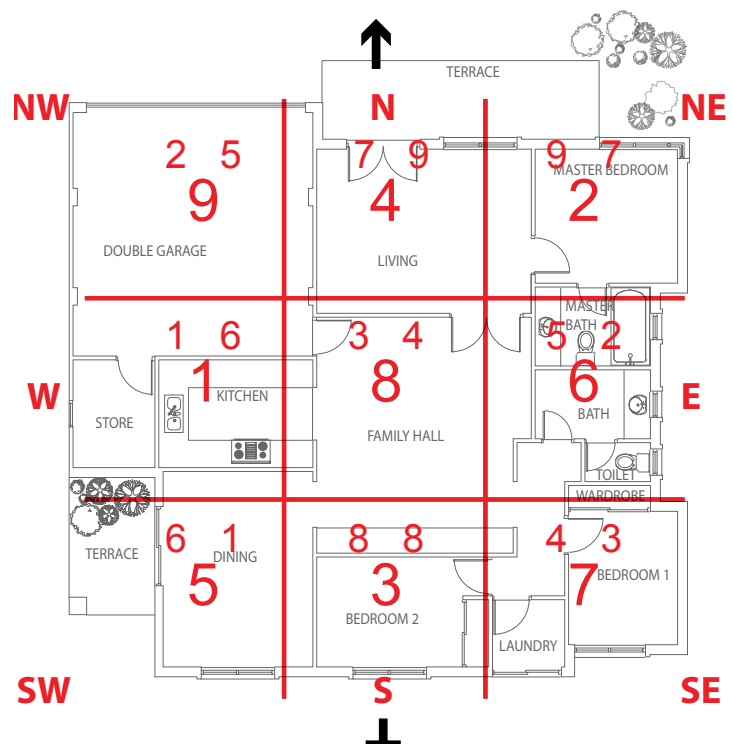

Transfer the Stars to the corresponding directional palaces.

NW	N					NE
	2	5	7	9	9	7
	9		4			2
W	1	6	3	4	5	2
	1		8			6
	6	1	8	8	4	3
SW	S					SE

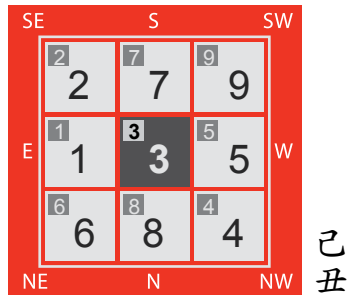

The final result should look something like this:
